

Duluth--Thirty-two senior high school biology teachers have been named to attend a five week summer institute at the University of Minnesota, Duluth campus (UMD) June 11--July 14.

Dr. Blanchard Krogstad, associate professor of biology at UMD and institute director, said the UMD course will be among 53 such institutes planned in the U.S. this summer.

The participants will be paid stipends, dependent allowances and mileage to attend the course, which is being financed by a $26,500 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Krogstad said the institute will provide an opportunity for the teachers to become acquainted with the Biological Sciences Curriculum Studies' "Green" version through working in the laboratory with a teacher having experience with this material, and to provide better background in ecology for teachers with limited experiences in this field through lectures and field trips.

Dr. Edward Flaccus, assistant professor of biology at UMD, and Donald Glittenberg, biology teacher at Lakewood High School, Lakewood, Colorado, will serve with Dr. Krogstad on the teaching staff. They will be assisted by special staff members from UMD and other campuses or schools.
