

October 25, 1974

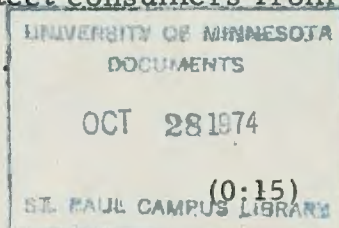

High Risk For Consumers

(0:20)

A high risk situation exists for consumers because the world grain market reserve stock cupboard is bare.

University of Minnesota Agricultural Exonomist Willard Cochrane says there is nothing to protect consumers from further sharp increases in world grain prices.

* * * *

Helpful Pamphlet

The Minnesota Agricultural Extension Service has a helpful pamphlet for consumers titled, "Buying a Used Clothes Washer and Dryer."

Ask for HS-32 from the Bulletin Room, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota 55108.

* * * *

Food Preservation

(0:30)

Here's a consumer tip from University of Minnesota food and nutrition extension specialist Isabel Wolf:

Consumers seeking information on home food preservation methods and problems should be careful about where they seek help. There is a great deal of wrong, misleading and potentially dangerous information in circulation. One good source of information is the Agricultural Extension Service itself. Judging by the number of canning inquiries received at the University and by county extension offices, consumers are making use of that source.

* * * *