SOURCES OF REFERENCE MATERIAL - 4-H VETERINARY SCIENCE PROJECT

Printed Reference Material

From County Agricultural Extension Offices - Every state has a large selection of booklets, leaflets, mimeographs, etc. on domestic animal and poultry management and diseases. Most of these publications are free of charge and are well illustrated and easy to read. 4-H Manuals used in other livestock and poultry projects may be helpful.

From the U. S. Department of Agriculture - List of Available Publications #11 contains a complete listing of all publications by the Department. This can be found in County Extension Offices or it can be purchased for 40 cents from the Supt. of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20025.

Pamphlets and Booklets

Client Information Leaflets - Manufacturers of veterinary drugs, biologics, and supplies produce short, well illustrated leaflets for distribution by veterinarians in their offices or hospitals. These may have a subtle sales message, but they contain up-to-date information and they are free.

Feed Company Booklets - All of the major feed companies and pet food manufacturers publish good literature on the feeding and care of animals. Many of these publications have excellent sections on health and diseases.

From Your State College of Veterinary Medicine - Colleges of Veterinary Medicine publish catalogs of requirements for admissions which are helpful for those interested in going to veterinary school. It is important that prospective veterinary students take the prescribed high school and college courses to prepare themselves for admission. Veterinary colleges publish annual reports of their activities and services which are full of useful information.

Audio Visual Material

Movies

From your County Agricultural Extension Office - Each state has available good color-sound films on animal and poultry management and diseases which are produced by the College of Agriculture, the school of veterinary medicine, the state department of agriculture and industrial firms. Each state extension serves as a branch film lending library for U. S. Department of Agriculture films. A publication, "Films of the U. S. Department of Agriculture", available in your county extension office or from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20025, for $.35, lists and describes each of the films.
