DULUTH--The UMD industrial education faculty, headed by director and associate professor Gordon O. Voss, will attend the state-wide Minnesota Vocational Association convention Friday in Minneapolis.

The two-day conclave begins Thursday and embraces the fields of trade and industrial education, industrial arts, home economics, agriculture, distributive education, guidance and office practice.

Others planning to attend include associate professor Frank Kovach, assistant professors Roy Northey and Earl Andrews and instructors James Matteson and Martin Mattson.

Convention sessions will be held at both the Leamington Hotel and the Minneapolis Vocational Technical School.
