Duluth--- Peter Krausser, professor of philosophy at the University of Berlin and visiting professor of philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania, will speak on "Theory of Scientific Inquiry and Rational Action," at 11:30 a.m. Friday (April 5) in UMD's Home Economics 206.

Krausser will cite the basis for a general theory of scientific inquiry and tell how it relates to intelligent action. He will explore the consequences of the theory for the theory of meaning and the problems of value judgements in the sciences.

The talk will be sponsored by the UMD Philosophy Department.
