

Prep Session Registration Jumps to 262

Radio Speech Added To Summer Studies

The University high school summer session is in full swing, with 100 more students than last year, and several new courses and teachers, according to G. Lester Anderson, assistant professor of education and director of University High.

This increase in enrollment brings the total to 262. Any student from an accredited high school in the country is eligible to attend.

One of the new courses offered this summer deals with radio speech and gives the students experience in writing scripts and using a microphone. Lauren Brink, teaching assistant in speech and business manager of the University Theater, is the instructor.

New staff members this summer are Harmony Brugger, social studies, who came from Stillwater high school; Marvel Woodrirk, Latin, from Redwood Falls high school; Elvira Townsend, economics, former Graduate student in political science, Luverne Eckstrom, librarian, from Columbia Heights high school.

3 U Instructors Will Teach Classes For GIs Overseas

Three University instructors will leave the country at the end of June to teach at army study centers in the European theater. Those selected by the war department are Arthur Borak, associate professor of economics; Fred L. Kildow, assistant professor of journalism; Bradstone Heisig, associate professor of inorganic chemistry.

Richard Eide, who took his masters degree in journalism here, will also join the group.

The temporary G.I. colleges are designed for anyone who is awaiting transportation home, Mr. Kildow explained. "It will be up to the individual colleges in the States whether they will accept the European credits toward degrees or advanced standing," he added.

Music Films for Teachers to Be Shown Tuesday

"Music Appreciation" is the topic of films to be shown for teachers at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Museum of Natural History auditorium. Sigmund Spaeth, nationally known musicologist, will demonstrate that familiar songs are made of simple tones.

The Hall-Johnson choir will sing the Bible story of Sampson, called, "That Man Sampson." A color film taken at the summer music camp at Interlachen, Mich., shows a youth symphony performing Howard Hanson's "Romantic" symphony.

Although the films are designed as aids for music teachers, anyone may attend the free program sponsored by the summer session.

Ziebarth to Take CBS Staff Position

By Dorothy Lebedoff

E. William Ziebarth, acting manager of radio station KUOM and instructor in speech, is leaving the University to become Regional Education director for the Columbia Broadcasting system for the Northwest, and production manager for radio station WCCO, it was announced yesterday by Julius M. Nolte, director of the University extension division.

As Columbia educational director, Mr. Ziebarth will be in charge of all public service programs and will direct the American School of the Air.

Mr. Ziebarth came to the University in 1936, and has been associated with the University radio station since 1938, when he organized the Minnesota School of the Air. He was made acting director of KUOM in 1944.

Co-author of a book on radio, "Six Classic Plays for Radio and How to Produce Them," Mr. Ziebarth also introduced the first credit courses in radio here. He has been radio education advisor to many boards of education and education groups in Minnesota.

Mr. Ziebarth is assuming his new position next week, but will continue to instruct a course in radio speech on the campus.

University Will Start 5-Day Week Sunday

Beginning Sunday, the University will operate on a five-day week to give all employees two consecutive days off each week, according to the rule adopted by the Board of Regents. This will be effective until September 15.

Both faculty and non-academic employees will work the same amount of hours each week but longer each day to make up the difference. They either will start earlier, work later, or have shorter lunch periods.

Skeleton staffs for Saturdays will be provided at the University library, the hospital, the kitchens and heating plant. Those who work on Saturdays will have Sundays and Mondays off.

Army and navy units on campus will not conform to a five-day instruction week, but their Saturday teaching will be provided by military instructors only.

Offices in the Administration building will open one-half hour earlier, at 8 p.m., and will remain open until 5 p.m.

"Combat America," a documentary film of the American Eighth air force in Europe, will be shown at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Union ballroom. Clark Gable, former captain with the Eighth, is narrator of the colored film. All students and faculty may attend the free movie.

July Construction of 3 Apartments Promised

By Frances Ahern

Announcement yesterday of plans to construct three apartment buildings and postponement of legislative investigations of the housing situation marked attempts to alleviate the housing crisis facing the University.

Construction will be started the early part of July, pending final government approval of priorities, on the apartment buildings to be located on Fourth and Fifth streets near Fifteenth avenue, according to R. W. Johnson, owner of the property.

An exhibition of landscape paintings by Lt. Warren Beach, son of Joseph W. Beach, professor and head of the English department, will be shown during July in the third floor gallery at Northrop auditorium.

The paintings are scenes of the Aleutians painted while Lt. Beach was on duty there. Before entering the army, he was an employe of the Walker art gallery, after having studied at the Yale art school and taken his masters degree at the University of Iowa.

The exhibit will start Monday.

Coffey Bids Farewell, Welcomes Successor

As I bid farewell to the University as its President, I wish once more to thank the students, the faculty, the civil service staff and the alumni for their support and cooperation.

The friendly and helpful attitude toward me assures me that President Morrill will have the hearty cooperation of one and all and that he will have a great opportunity on this campus as the leader in building an ever stronger program of teaching, research and service for the benefit and welfare of the people of Minnesota.

I have full confidence in his ability as an educational leader, and for me it is a genuine pleasure to welcome him as my successor to the presidency of the University of Minnesota.

W. C. Coffey, President.

Designated primarily for University students, the furnished apartments will rent for $50 a month. Approximate building costs have been estimated as $450,000.

"The legislative investigation of University housing conditions has been delayed until the later part of July," Rep. Carl O. Wegner, twenty-ninth district, said yesterday.

"Committee members, Harold R. Lundeen, thirty-second district, and L. J. Gleason, thirty-fifth district, are too busy to start the investigation at the present time," he added. "After talking it over, we decided to delay the investigation until later."

"No action has yet been reported on the Regent's request for federal funds from Washington," William T. Middlebrook, vice president in charge of business administration, said Wednesday.

The request had been submitted to Minnesota congressmen this spring in an attempt to secure more funds for housing construction.

I.T., SLA Map 5-Year Course

Humanities, Biology, English Included

Tentative plans have been drawn up for a five-year engineering curriculum which will include Arts college courses.

The tentative course of study includes general biology, with emphasis on human biology; social science; a choice of a course in humanities; 15 credits in English and nine credits to be selected from a list of recommended courses.

Whether or not this five year program will be optional or mandatory will be decided next fall. Samuel C. Lind, dean of the Institute of Technology, pointed out that the optional five year program for students in business administration had a large enrollment before the war.

According to Thomas L. Joseph, professor of metallurgy, the Institute is trying to take advantage of the general studies offered by the University, so that engineering students may get integrated courses in several fields.

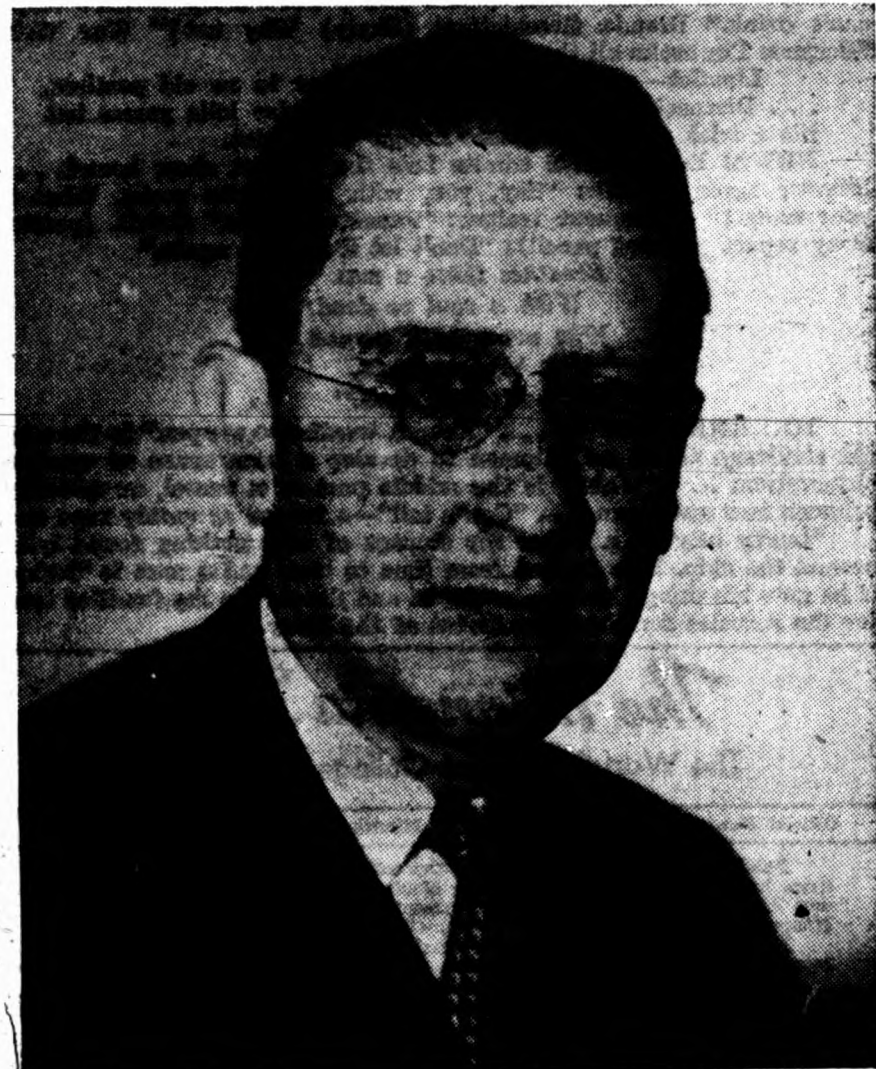

Mr. Joseph and Russell M. Cooper, chairman of general studies, headed a committee of members of Technology and Arts college faculties in the study of the

U Works With Marshall High On Student Counseling Program

The University student counseling bureau is working with the counseling staff of Marshall high school on a student guidance program, Gordon V. Anderson, director of the bureau, said recently. "Our purpose is to aid students in the transition from high school to college, and to coordinate student personnel conditions in the high schools with those in the University," Mr. Anderson said.

He explained that a counseling study is being made of a random selection of students in the ninth grade by means of psychological, interest and personality tests, interviews by University and Marshall counselors and joint weekly meetings of the two staffs to discuss the individual students.

A cumulative record of each student is kept, in which is included data on family, previous employment, plans for future employment, grades and activities. "An average proportion of Marshall students intend to go to the University, but we don't deal only with them. We answer questions such as whether or not the student should attend college, and, if not, what he should take in high school. We also solve curricular problems of those who will attend college," Mr. Anderson said.

He believes there was a real need for such a matriculation study, since the problem has come up repeatedly in counseling meetings which he has attended throughout the state.

Minnesota counseling staff members working on the project with Anderson are Ray Bixler, Ruth V. Johnston and Dr. Maurice D. Woolf, head of the counseling bureau. Clarence E. Blume, principal of Marshall, is the former principal of Phillips junior high school, where he also did counseling work. "Ultimately we will have a general plan of high school-college matriculation that can be used in any large city high school," said Mr. Anderson.

Campus Club 3-Floor Haven For U Faculty

By Charles Magraw

Most University students know nothing about the fourth, fifth and sixth floors of the Coffman Union. To them, anything past the third floor is a mystery, just so much extra brickage that makes it possible to point out the Union to campus visitors as one of the taller buildings.

On these three floors, however, is located the Campus club, which corresponds to faculty clubs of other universities.

The club was started in 1911—a small building facing on Church street, standing on the spot now occupied by the atom smasher.

The Campus club is an independent organization, supported and run by faculty members, not by the University administration. Walter M. Lauer, professor of organic chemistry is president of the club; Thomas F. Barnhart, professor of journalism, vice president.

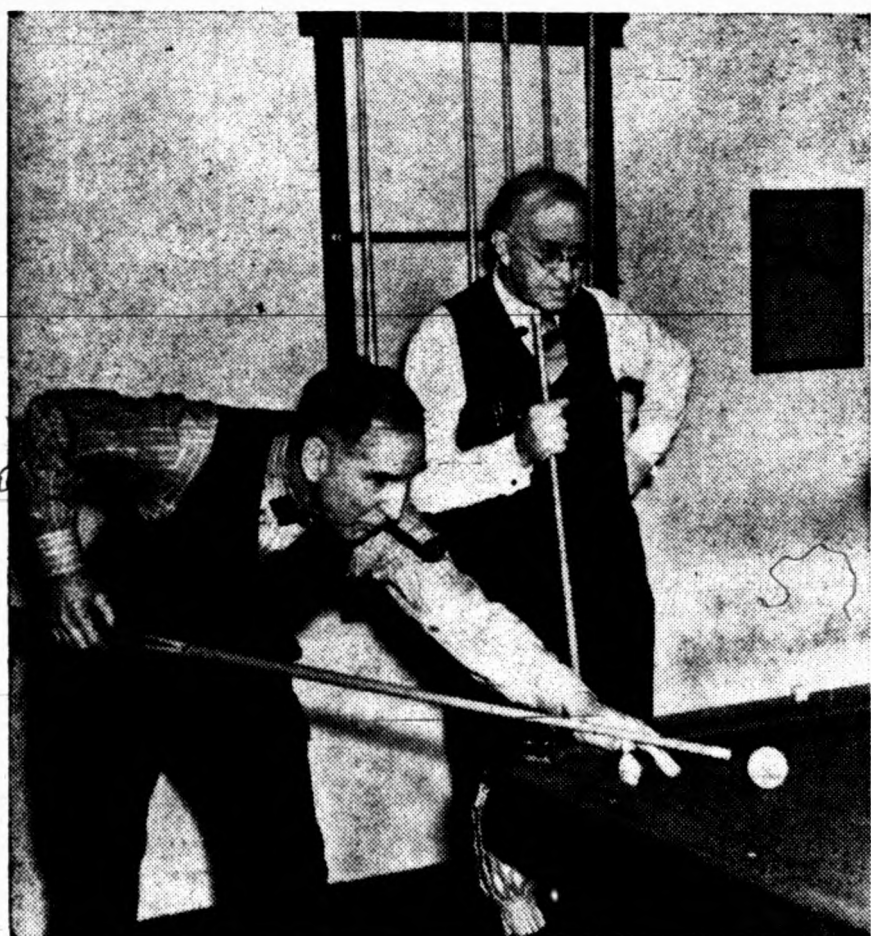

Main part of the club is located on the fourth floor, including a lounge, a dining room and kitchen.

Three principal rooms on the fifth floor are the billiard room, card room and reading room. A Campus club billiard tournament is held annually; Dean Rogers, College of Pharmacy, is this year's winner.

Willie Hoppe, for years the world's billiard champion, once visited the club to give an exhibition and overstayed his time by three hours because he was amused by the faculty men's running comments on their games as he watched them play.

The sixth and top floor of the Union contains the rooms of the 12 faculty members who live at the Campus club.

CAMPUS CLUB—that's the place where deans and professors can take off their coats, roll up their sleeves and just relax. E. B. Pierce, secretary of the General Alumni association, lines up a shot, while J. W. Powell, lecturer emeritus in English literature, casts a fearful eye at the far cushion.

War Trophies Sent By Former Students Shown in Library

Trophies from the battlefronts of the world collected by former University students are now on display on the main floor at the University library.

Pfc. Stanley Wenberg, former University library employe now stationed in England, sent back many German books and pamphlets, some of which were written by Dr. Goebbels, former nazi propaganda minister.

Dozens of military buttons from many countries were sent to the library by Sgt. Robert Johnson, another University student. All the buttons have ornate emblems and inscriptions, except the German button, which is perfectly plain.

The propaganda leaflets prepared for the Japs, which are on display, are actually in the form of a leaf. The Americans have capitalized on the fact that the Japs are superstitious about particular tree leaves as well as poetry. The Americans make leaves out of paper. On one side is propaganda, and on the other side is poetry.

HERE 'N' ...
Big Ten
... THERE

At Iowa ...

Old familiar rivals, three of whom began competition with the Hawkeyes more than 50 years ago, predominate on this year's Iowa grid schedule.

Minnesota and Nebraska have built up a tradition with the Hawks that began in 1891. Over this period of 53 years, the Gophers and Iowans have met 38 times, Minnesota winning 29 and dropping 9. Worst loss suffered by the Hawkeyes was in 1903 when Doc William's crew ran over an unfortunate eleven, 75-0.

Wisconsin is another veteran of competition from the Iowa point of view. The two schools met in 1894, but have only clashed 23 times since then.

Nile Kinnick, all-American halfback from the tall corn state in 1939, recently was elected to the collegiate hall of fame by sports writers. Kinnick, as will be recalled, died in a navy plane crash two years ago. It was he who, in 1939, connected with touchdown passes to end Bill Green to edge a highly-favored Minnesota squad, 13-9.

Also named to the same hall of fame was Davey (Slingshot) O'Brien, pint-sized back from Texas Christian who also was an all-American before he went into pro ball.

At Northwestern ...

Summer football drills got underway yesterday, and Coach Lynn Waldorf had 70 grid candidates on hand, half of them freshman. Heading the list of six Wildcat veterans back is Max Morris, end, and Dick Connors, right half, both of whom were regulars last season.

Despite the high freshman content of his squad, Waldorf has managed to land several men from the ranks of the V-12 navy program on that campus. West Hanson, one of the group, played tackle at Yale last year, but the rest of the men have little more than high school football experience.

At Michigan ...

Fritz Crisler this year will undoubtedly build most of his team around Joe Ponsetto, outstanding quarterback from last year and only regular full-time starter. Ponsetto, who was so outstanding in the 1944 contest with the Gophers, was designated to lead the Wolverines this season by captain-elect Bruce Hilkene upon the latter's transfer to another naval station.

Hal Watts and John Lintol lead the Michigan candidates who are out for positions in the forward wall, while Jack Weisenburger, Warren Bentz and Howard Yerges are the leading men for spots in the backfield.

And Crisler, like so many other coaches in the Big Ten this year, will be counting on freshmen talent. The Michigan schedule, rocky as usual, includes games with Great Lakes, Indiana, Michigan State, Northwestern, Army, Illinois, Minnesota, Navy, Purdue and Ohio State, in that order.

At Ohio State ...

Coach Carroll Widdoes remarked that he was "surprised" at the turnout of 116 men for the first Buckeye workout recently. He did not expect more than 80 gridders, now has so many that he has to split them into two groups, Dan Dillon and former Buck griddler Jack Dugger will be in charge of the "B" squad. A good share of Widdoes' backfield and much of his line is back from last year—when the Staters won the Big Ten conference crown.

At Minnesota ...

Dave MacMillan, recently reappointed cage mentor, will not choose his coaching staff until late summer when and if Frank McCormick returns as athletic director.

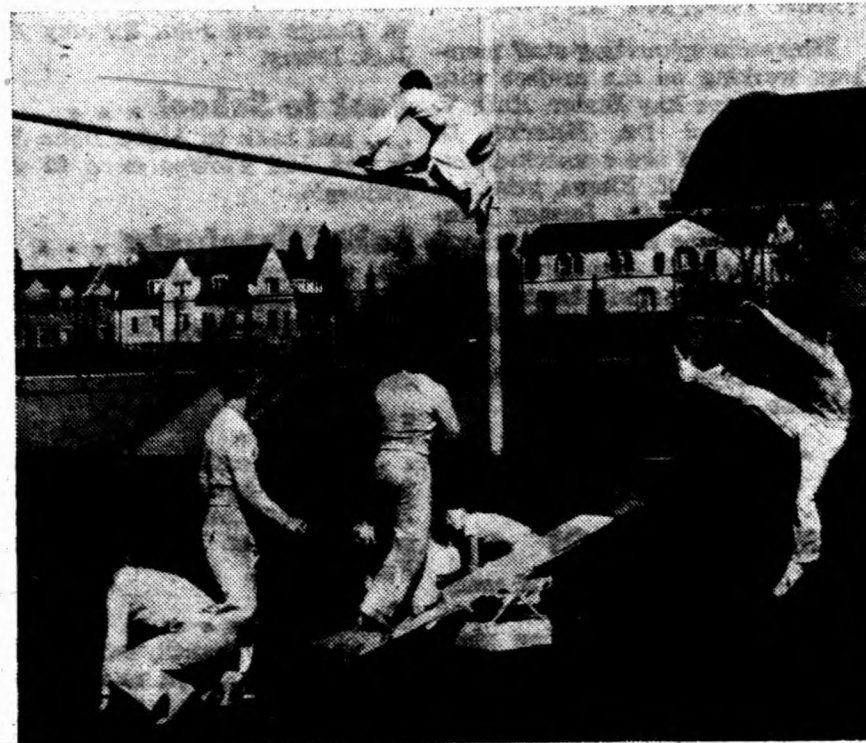

Bernie Bierman will have one of the top backfields, in Big Ten grid competition this fall with Red Williams, Vic Kulbitski, John Lundquist and Merlin Kispert as starters.

All-U Council Urges Cheerleader Filing

Anyone interested in working on the cheerleading squad or in being rooster king is urged to file immediately in room 228 Union, Jean Ferrin, chairman of the appointments committee of the All-University Council, said yesterday.

Lt. Newt Loken, USNR, former Minnesota cheerleader and National Intercollegiate gymnastics champion, is expected home on leave from the Atlantic sometime in July and will help the team work out.

Loken and Otis Dypwick, University athletic publicity director, have just written a book called "Cheerleading and Marching Bands" which will come out in September.

Crossing the Bar is one of the favorite stunts of cheerleaders at the University to help the team and to bring on shouts from the crowd during the sounds and fury of football games. Cheerleaders and potential cheerleaders are asked by the All University council to file in room 228 Union. Coeds will not be subjected to the above ignominious flight illustrated by Bob Berg, former student.

New Life In 'Log' Theater

U Students To Get Own Summer Theater

By Dorothy Lebedoff

A group of University Theater students and graduates wanted a summer theater of their own. They didn't have any financial backing, so they pooled their money—anything from $5 to $100.

They rented the Old Log theater near Excelsior and, armed with brooms and mops, they've been cleaning it up.

Valentine Kaytavev's satire, "Squaring The Circle," will open the season on the week-end of July 13. The play is known as the Russian "Yhie's Irish Rose" because of its tremendous popularity in Russia.

The group is not only rehearsing their first play, but is also painting and constructing the scenery, sewing costumes and setting up lights.

"Old Acquaintance" is one of the plays tentatively scheduled. The group plans to present a two week-end run of each play until sometime in September. They hope at that time to establish the Civic Repertory group in Minneapolis.

Organizers of the Civic Repertory group are Minnie Brill, Graduate student and publicity director for University Theater; Helen Marie McPherson, Graduate student, and Gloria Feickert, Arts senior.

League Specializes in Regulations Questions

They have information about regulations governing licensing of pinball machines and cigaret sales. And if you want contrast, they have all the inside dope on regulations about dogs and livestock. Questions concerning these and hundreds of other municipal and governmental problems are answered each year by the League of Minnesota Municipalities.

The League, in connection with the Municipal reference bureau of the University's General Extension division, has its headquarters in room 16 of the Library. Clarence C. Ludwig, professor of political science, is executive secretary of the bureau.

Minnesota Municipalities is the title of the monthly magazine published by the League. It contains articles and new notes on Minnesota cities and villages. The circulation runs over 5,000 a month.

The league also holds short courses at the Center for Continuation Study for various municipal workers such as assessors, finance officers and waterworks inspectors.

According to Professor Ludwig, the League is basically not a research bureau, but a service agency. There are 40 such leagues in the United States, many closely associated with state universities.

Report From London

Former U. Actor Returns to Campus

A play at the famous old Vic Theater in London thrilled Lt. Col. Chester Mornearu more than any flying adventures he experienced in 14 months overseas.

Back in the states for a 30-day leave Col. Mornearu is visiting on the campus. He graduated from the University in 1939, and joined the army air force shortly afterwards.

While at the University, he was an active member of the University Theater and Masquers, honorary theater organization. He appeared in many Theater productions, among them "It Can't Happen Here" and "Night Must Fall."

"The legitimate theaters in London are going full-force these days. The buzz bombs didn't stop activities a bit. Lawrence Olivier and in the general tour are paintings by John Gielgud are among those who have organized fine repertory theaters in London," he said.

Art Tour Tomorrow

University summer session will conduct a tour through the Minneapolis Institute of Arts at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow. Galleries included in the general tour are paintings by Twin City artists, prints, Renaissance and Gothic tepestries.
