David Couser Plays

Adam Lead in '1931—'

David Couser and Rose Haskell play the leading roles of Adam and The Girl in the Sifton play, "1931—" which the University of Minnesota is bringing to the campus tomorrow and Thursday nights. The Portal Players, the little theater group of Minneapolis, are the performers.

Other leading roles are taken by Glen Erkel, James Langness, Harold Snead, Louis Harris, O. L. Bacon, Harry Pulver, Gladys Broberg, Evelyn Swenson, Frieda Holman, Jean Leonard, Flora Jane MacDonald, Louis Ostrin, Francis Sherwood, Mark Markson, and Dean Jensen. In addition to these main characters, the play calls for many others, making the total number of speaking characters 56. The number includes several former students at the university.

The authors of the play, Paul and Clare Sifton, are brother and sister. They are prominent in New York dramatic circles and are contributors to leading periodicals. Paul Sifton's play, "The Belt" was produced on Broadway several seasons ago. It deals with mass production and its effects on society. "1931—" deals with unemployment dramatically and emotionally. True, these Sifton plays have economic and sociological backgrounds, but they are by no means pedagogic treatises. They make no attempt to preach or to teach lessons. They merely build intensely human stories around these forces which so vitally affect people without their understanding why and against which they have no individual control.

Tickets for this play are on sale at 75 cents and 50 cents in the ticket office in the post office here on the campus and at Donaldson's downtown ticket office. The nights are Wednesday and Thursday and the place, the Music Auditorium.

Popular Lecturer in Mathematics Opens Second Term Program

Professor E. R. Hedrick, who popularized himself with first session students in the two lectures on mathematical subjects which he gave, will give the first extra-curricular lecture of the second session at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Physics auditorium. His subject will be "Formalism."

During the regular academic year, Professor Hedrick is on the staff of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Recreational Excursions

Two excursions will be held today. One at 2:00 p.m. will give students and friends an opportunity to visit the Washburn Crosby flour mills. The tour will last about an hour and will include a display of old stone wheels and of modern machinery for making flour, as well as a view of the production of the flour from the grain to the finished product.

The party going to the mills will leave the 17th avenue entrance to the Administration building at 2:00 o'clock.

The second excursion will start from the same place at 2:15 and go to the Wells Memorial House, 116 N. 11th, where they will see M. N. Kamat give a demonstration of native East Indian cooking. Mr. Kamat, who is an instructor in the University of Bombay and who is doing graduate study here, will be garbed in native costume. He will also lecture on the customs and habits of the natives of his own country.

Students' Health Service

Dispensary open until 4:30 p.m. daily except Saturday, when it closes at 12:00 m. Saturday noon until Monday morning emergency care only may be obtained by application to University Hospital Admission Department.

The Students' Health Service requests that appointments for periodic health examinations be made early in the session. These examinations are compulsory for graduating seniors in the College of Education who expect to receive a teacher's certificate.

The Dental Department of the Students' Health Service is in operation during the Summer Session. Students desiring work done should make appointments promptly at the office on the Ground Floor.

Second Term Opens

With 1102 Students

More than 1100 students, 1102 to be exact, had registered for the second term of summer school before the windows in the Registrar's office had closed on Saturday, the regular registration day. With late registrations allowed until Wednesday night, this total may be considerably swelled.

The total figures for the second session in 1931 are 1406. This number includes all the late registrants and is not the parallel figure to 1102. The total registration in 1930 was 1192.

Cancellations of courses, due to classes which are too small to pay for carrying the course, are comparatively few. Those few, which have not been cancelled previously, are listed in the Official Daily Bulletin today. If other cancellations become necessary, they will be published tomorrow.

Administrative officials and students appreciate the co-operation that the members of the teaching staff are giving them, that the second session may continue.

University Press Publishes

'Newspaper Reference Libraries'

Robert W. Desmond, assistant professor of journalism here, left last week for the East and England after arranging with the University of Minnesota Press for publication of his book on "Newspaper Reference Libraries."

Mr. Desmond, who is to study this winter at the London School of Economics and Political Science, has made a long and intensive study of this little-known phase of newspaper work. His book relates the history of newspaper reference libraries, which have grown during the last 50 years from a few clippings in an old shoe box to the huge organized establishments occupying, in some cases, an entire floor of a newspaper building, well stocked with filing cases and bound volumes of newspapers and reference materials. The correct methods of organizing newspaper libraries, with numerous practical hints for librarians engaged in the work, are included in Mr. Desmond's book. He appends a long list of books useful for reference on many subjects, and divided into two sections; one the essential list and the other a list of books that are useful but not essential to the newspaper library. His book also contains advice for librarians in charge of any sort of special library, and for students of journalism, whether they intend going into library work or not.

The book will appear this fall, and will be used as a text in some journalism courses.
