The plight of a man searching for some meaning for his life in a world of seemingly insoluble problems is the theme of the John Osborne play Look Back in Anger to be presented at 8 p.m. November 5,6,7 in Old Main on the Lower UMD campus.

It will be a UMD "Studio Theatre" production with advisor Fred Meitzer, instructor in speech, and Terry Goerne, a junior from Minneapolis, directing the all-student effort.

Sharing the lead parts will be Peter McCulloch, freshman, and Gail Holzer, junior, both of Duluth. Diane Peterson and Thomas J. Peterson, both Duluth freshmen, and Dennis Velandar, a sophomore from Hermantown, will take the other parts.

The Studio Theatre group produced three plays last year, its first year of operation.

The Studio Theatre group began operation last year when it produced three plays. Students get training not only in acting but also in directing, casting, production and other techniques of dramatic presentation.
