DULUTH -- The annual Business Education Conference co-sponsored by UMD and Wisconsin State University at Superior will be held Friday, April 22 in Kirby Student Center ballroom.

This year's conference, which features five guest speakers, expects to draw about 75 high school teachers from Northern Minnesota and Northwestern Wisconsin.

Dr. Fred Cook, chairman of the Department of Business Education at Wayne State University, will talk on "Entry Occupations and the Business Education Classroom" at 10:30 a.m. and "Teaching Them to Type Right" at 2:15 p.m.

Miss Marie Benson, professor emeritus at Wisconsin State University at Whitewater, will speak at 1:15 p.m. on "Modern Testing and Grading in Shorthand."

Other speakers include: Dr. Chester Sorensen, assistant professor of business administration, at 9:30 a.m. on "The Recordkeeping, Bookkeeping, Accounting Spectrum: Where Do We Stand?"

Dr. Ellis Jones, professor of business education at Gustavus Adolphus College and president of the Minnesota Business Education Association, at 11:10 a.m. on "You and EDP (Educational Professionalism) in Business."

William Larimer, data processing instructor for the Duluth Areas Vocational Schools, at 3 p.m. on "Educational Data Processing and the Business Teacher."

Registration and the preview of the exhibitors' displays, will be held from 8:30-9:30 a.m.
