

Religion-Education Court Battle Opens

By Bill Hannaher

The first formal hearing in an action which could strongly influence the relationships between organized religion and secular education begins today at 10 a. m. in Hennepin county district court.

Today is the deadline for the University to answer an alternate writ of mandamus which Minneapolis attorney William L. Sholes secured June 6 from Judge Harold N. Rodgers.

The writ ordered the University to forbid the use of campus facilities to sectarian religious groups or to show cause.

Sholes claimed the use of such facilities by religious organizations violates the Minnesota constitution and the federal bill of rights.

It is known that the University will fight the court order, but Academic Vice Pres. Malcolm M. Willey yesterday refused to discuss the specific points which University attorneys will attempt to make at the hearing.

Each side has declared its intention to carry the case to higher courts if an unfavorable decision is reached.

The most famous of previous "religion and education" court arguments is the campaign of Mrs. Vashti McCollum against the Champaign, Ill., school board.

The United States supreme court in 1947 told the Champaign board to stop religious instruction within school buildings.

At the University, however, the issue is use of facilities by religious foundations, not religious instruction in classrooms.

Showers Tonight

Partly cloudy and cool with brief light showers tonight is the weather forecast for today. Tomorrow skies will be partly cloudy with little change in temperature. The weatherman schedules tonight's rain from 5 to 8 p. m. High today: 75; Low: 55; High tomorrow: 75-80; Low: 60.

Violinist Will Be Concert Soloist

Violinist Stephan Hero, on campus to participate in a series of programs on contemporary American music, art and literature, will be guest soloist with the summer session orchestra in a concert at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in Northrop auditorium.

The orchestra, made up of Minnesota symphony orchestra members, will play Mozart's Symphony in E flat, Paul Creston's Two Choric dances, Op. 17B and selections from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Hero will solo in the first American orchestral performance of Tansman's "Cinq Pieces." The violinist has played "Cinq Pieces" in several previous concerts, but only with piano accompaniment. Orchestral scores for the work were obtained from the composer in Paris.

Hero also will play Ernest Chausson's Poeme, Op. 25, with the orchestra under direction of James Aliferis, associate professor of music.

The concert is open to the public free of charge.

'Poets Oppose Science,' Shapiro Tells Audience

A psychologist invited poet Shapiro to test his power of imagination.

This, Karl Shapiro, who won the Pulitzer prize for poetry in 1945 and is editor of Poetry magazine, told a convocation audience in Northrop auditorium last night, was the origin of his talk on "Poets and Psychologists."

The psychologist proposed to record the poet's reactions to a series of pictures.

He noted Shapiro's opinion that the pictures were poor as pictures and gave Shapiro a check for $100.

"It is rare," Shapiro commented, "for a poet to get $100."

A little later, Shapiro heard from the psychologist again. This time there were questions instead of pictures.

"What," the psychologist wanted to know, "is the pattern of a poet's life today?"

"A. What is the nature of his dwelling?"

"B. What is the nature of his interaction with friends?"

"C. What is the nature and significance of other than working activities?"

Shapiro answered that he "really didn't see what difference it made" so the psychologist submitted an alternate question: "Is there a pattern to the poet's life day?"

Shapiro then answered (more or less) the psychologist's revised questions for the convo audience.

"Good writing," he said, "can be done any place because poetry is not so much a giving out of experience as a self experience."

The poet Shapiro characterized as a person above all obsessed by a desire to write poetry.

"The Twentieth-century poet condemns pure science especially when it enters the realm of people because of its tendency to limit truth to what is known," Shapiro concluded.

"It is the sensory memory rather than the factual memory that is important."

Shapiro will participate in a symposium on "Recent Tendencies in American Art, Music and Literature" from 3 to 5 p. m. today in the Museum of Natural History auditorium.

Other speakers will be Andrew Carnduff Ritchie, Museum of Modern Art, New York; Prof. H. Harvard Arnason, chairman, department of art; Stephan Hero, concert violinist; Prof. Paul Oberg, chairman, department of music; William Van O'Connor, assistant professor of English.

"Let's face it," say these coeds as they get in the mood for the Charm, Inc., makeup demonstration scheduled for 3 p. m. today in the Union. They have just learned that the book says to take it easy on the powder and paint, so Rosemary Roy, education sophomore, gets a going over. Assisting in the task are Kathy Callas, education junior (left), and Barbara Gallagher, general college sophomore. Emily Wohlstrom, makeup artist from the Dayton company, will give demonstrations with the lecture. Admission is free.

Ritchie to Lecture Library Head Named On Modern Art Dean of SLA College

"Five Movements in Modern Painting" will be the subject of the third American studies lecture to be given by Andrew Carnduff Ritchie at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Museum of Natural History auditorium.

Director of painting and sculpture at New York's Museum of Modern Art, Dr. Ritchie will participate today in a symposium on current trends in the American arts. It also will be held in the auditorium.

Dr. Ritchie, who was born in Scotland, graduated from the University of Pittsburgh and received his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of London. From 1942 to 1949 he was the director of the Albright Art gallery in Buffalo N. Y. He was appointed to his present position July 1.

Following World War II, Dr. Ritchie helped recover the German art loot in Austria and was decorated with the Legion of Honor by the French government and the Order of Orange Nassau of the Netherlands.

He is the author of "English Painters: Hogarth to Constable" and has written several articles for art periodicals. Recently he edited a two-volume, illustrated catalogue of the Albright Art gallery.

Two more American studies lectures will be given this month to complete the series of five. Mae Brodbeck, assistant professor of philosophy, will speak on "Philosophy and American Patterns of Thought" July 18. Henry May, associate professor of history at Scripps college, will conclude the series July 25 with a lecture on "The Twilight of American Radicalism."

When SLA officials and administrative personnel move next fall into Johnston hall, new classroom and office building, the locale won't be the only thing different—there also will be a new dean.

E. W. McDiarmid, University librarian for eight years, was named Friday by the board of regents to succeed T. Raymond McConnell, who became Buffalo university chancellor a year ago.

Dr. McDiarmid, who will celebrate his forty-second birthday Friday is in Chicago this week attending a conference of the American Library association, of which he was president in 1948-49.

He will assume his new duties when he returns. J. W. Buchta, acting dean for the past year, will remain as assistant dean and physics department chairman.

Edward B. Stanford, assistant librarian for five years, becomes acting librarian and acting director of the library instruction division.

A native of West Virginia, Dr. McDiarmid received his bachelor's and master's degrees at Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, Tex. He also earned a degree at the library school, Emory university, Ga., and a doctorate of philosophy at the University of Illinois in 1934.

A three-year term as librarian at Baylor university, Waco, Tex., was followed by five years at the University of Illinois, where he became assistant librarian in 1942. The following year he came to Minnesota to succeed Frank K. Walter.

Dr. McDiarmid wrote the 1940 "Library Survey" and was co-author of "The Administration of the American Public Library." He is the Minnesota Library association's president-elect.

Pres. J. L. Morrill said this week that he and his faculty advisory committee believe Dr. McDiarmid will show "high scholarly integrity and stimulating leadership" in his new position.

Student admission is by fee statement and payment of a 10-cent tax. General admission is 60 cents for adults and 25 cents for high school students.

The films are sponsored by the University film society.

Plans for a pot luck supper on July 31 will be made by the Grove East Village association social committee at 8:30 p. m. today at the Edmund A. Hibbard residence, 2149-A Folwell street.

Russian Institute Has Heavy Class Schedule

By John Cleland

The Russian department of the University has come up with a new twist in language institutes this summer. Instead of quartering its students like the other language houses, the Russian institute concentrates solely on a heavy class schedule of 20 hours of conversational Russian each week.

Classes meet at 8 a. m. Monday through Friday and students speak Russian for four hours every day.

Four native Russians and Thomas F. Magner, assistant professor of linguistics and director of the institute, teach the 20 students enrolled in the course. The Russian instructors are George Olkhousky, Nora Tamberg, Oleg Jardetzky and Anatole Rabceovich.

Among students attending the institute are representatives of Harvard, Dartmouth, the United States Military academy, Texas State College for Women, Macalester, Gustavus Adolphus, in addition to the University.

Besides class work, students see a Russian language film each week, get daily copies of the Russian newspaper, Novoye Russkoye Slovo, and hold box lunch gatherings at the YMCA.

Persons interested in the operation of this intensive language program may visit classes between 8 a. m. and noon on the second floor of Temporary South of Folwell, said Director Magner.

Notices to Staff

TO DEANS, DIRECTORS, DEPARTMENT HEADS AND SECRETARIES

Booklets containing information about the State Employees Retirement fund laws as amended by the 1951 state legislature effective July 1, 1951 will be sent to each SERA member in the very near future.

It is important, however, that all departments be advised at once of changes affecting SERA procedures at the University of Minnesota.

- Beginning July 1, 1951, six per cent is deducted from each member's pay check on earnings up to $4,800 in any fiscal year.
- On termination of service, application for refundment (Form SERA 18) may be completed and notarized at the end of the "last working day," (changed from the "last date of pay.")
- Every civil service staff employee is required to become a member in the State Employees Retirement association with only the following exceptions:
 - Students.
 - Those individuals participating in the University of Minnesota faculty retirement plan or the federal retirement system.
 - Individuals employed for a period of ten days or less. (No request for exemption is necessary; the appointment must state that the period of employment is ten days or less.)

There is no longer a provision which permits provisional and temporary employees to elect not to be members in SERA. The new law also provides that persons entering state service at age 65 or over are required to be members. The result is that employees who have elected not to be members and employees who are not members because they were over 65 years of age at the date of entering state service automatically become members July 1, 1951, and deductions are required from their salaries beginning July 1, 1951. (Information Sheet SERA 15 is required for each such individual.)

Ray F. Archer, Director,
Department of Insurance and Retirement.

ADULT EDUCATION DIRECTORY

The Minnesota Council for Adult Education is preparing a handbook listing the services of various Minnesota organizations engaged in adult education. Each organization is asked to design and contribute its own page to the book which will be distributed to clubs and associations in the Twin Cities and throughout the state.

A number of University departments have received letters from the council asking if they wish to have a page in the book. Units of the University which provide groups in the community with such facilities as speakers, audio-visual aids, pamphlets and consulting services are eligible for inclusion in the directory.

For information about the project call William C. Rogers, director of the State Organization Service department at Ext. 6295.

WINNERS of scholarships totaling more than $3600 from the Group Health association receive congratulations from Dr. Maurice Visscher (right), professor and head physiology, and Louis E. Lerman, president of the association. Recipients are Paul R. Leon, medical freshman, and Inez Krantz, Medicine Lake, who will enter the University next fall. The two were named by a committee of educators and medical personnel.

Two U Students Receive 4-year Med Scholarships

Two University students will receive $1,000 next year as part of scholarships totaling $3,600 from a fund of dimes contributed this year by members of the Group Health association.

The students are Paul R. Leon, a first-year medical student from Ely, and Inez Krantz, Medicine Lake, who will enter the University next fall as a student of medical technology.

The winners, members of families who are part of the large co-operative health organization, eventually will receive the $3,600 over a four-year period.

Leon, an honor graduate of Harvard university, has been awarded $125 for the uncompleted quarter of his first year in medical school, plus $500 per year for the next three.

Miss Krantz, a graduate of Wayzata high school, has been awarded $500 per year for her four years of training in medical technology.

The scholarships were awarded by a committee of the Group Health board of directors. Recommendations were made by a special committee of educators and medical personnel.

Dr. Maurice Visscher, professor and head of the medical school physiology department, is chairman of a special advisory committee that assisted in setting up standards for the scholarships.

Next year, two more Group Health scholarships will be awarded by the organization. Annual 10-cent contributions by members will create the new scholarships and sustain those already granted.

Friday Night Social Dances Set for Union

"We guarantee that you will enjoy yourself whether the temperature is 60 or 106."

That's the promise of G. Ray Higgins, Union director, concerning the Friday night social dances to be held in the Union main ballroom during both summer sessions.

"Informality is the keynote of these dances," Higgins said. "These are some of the few times of the year when men are not required to wear suit coats. It is a stag affair where students can meet new friends in that atmosphere of friendliness unique with summer session dances."

The dances will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight every Friday. For the first time the dances will have an orchestra providing music. Jerry Dibble and his eight-piece orchestra will play a variety of dance music. Requests also will be played.

Admission to the dances is free by summer session fee statement. The Union board of governors is the sponsoring committee.

An institute on Family Life, to be held July 26 through 28, will begin with a series of talks on pre-marriage education and counseling as viewed by a parent, an educator, a clergyman, a doctor and a lawyer.

The Minnesota Latin workshop will be held at the Center July 30 through Aug. 3. A special offering of the workshop will be studio recordings of Cicero's First Cantilinarian Oration over KUOM.

A music institute for rural educators, to be held Aug. 6 through 8, will teach practical procedures for teaching music in small schools. Rote singing, part singing, creative rhythm activities, pitch problems and changing voice problems are a few of the topics which will be studied.

Three additional courses scheduled by the Center this summer are Oral Surgery, July 9 through 13; Operative Dentistry, July 16 through 20; Crown and Bridge, Aug. 13 through 17.

Interested students may obtain additional information regarding applications, lodging and fees at the educational office, 131 Center for Continuation Study.

College Teachers Training Plan To Start in Fall

A new program for college teachers receiving Ford Foundation fellowships during the coming academic year is under way at the University.

Dean of the graduate school Theodore C. Blegen says the program will give 500 selected college teachers a year's non-degree training from the University's "many resources and facilities."

Courses and seminars will be offered in counseling, the teacher's special field of training, teaching under faculty supervision and a common leadership program. Visits will be made to University and nearby college classes.

Ford Foundation has granted $2,190,000 to finance the specialized program, which will pay each teacher's salary, tuition, and travel allowances.
