CROOKSTON, Minn. (April 26, 2007) –Tricia Sanders, assistant to the vice chancellor of finance and university services at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) was recently selected as one of 25 participants for the 2007-08 President's Emerging Leaders (PEL) program. Designed to develop the leadership skills of very competent, high-potential staff within the University of Minnesota system, the PEL program selects a cohort of individuals from nominations made by University leaders.

Members of the cohort are selected by a special review committee to participate in the 12-month program that features both educational and experiential components.

"We are pleased to have Tricia chosen for the Emerging Leader's program," said UMC Chancellor Charles H. Casey. "The nurturing and development of significant leadership skills is important to the University of Minnesota, Crookston. Tricia is an excellent choice for the program and an example of the talent our campus possesses."

The goal of the PEL program is to identify, prepare and support new leadership within the U of M to build institutional talent. Participants are involved in and work on university-wide projects and program activities, including seminars, experiential learning, assessment of leadership skills and coaching. Program components are intended to foster a broad perspective of the University as an enterprise and promote skill development that enhances the participants' effectiveness.
